Dear Public Relations and Communication Professionals:

In an era of rapid technological change and disruption, it’s important that public relations and communication professionals continue to learn new skills to adapt to this ever-changing environment.

PRSA’s professional development program offers communication professionals a wide variety of learning opportunities. Regardless of your career stage or whether you prefer to learn through in-person sessions or online courses at your office, PRSA has a solution to meet your needs. Our District and Section programs allow you to seek learning opportunities with other professionals in your region or focus area.

Compelling keynoters, industry leaders and innovators make us excited about the PRSA 2019 International Conference, to be held Oct. 20–22 in San Diego. We hope you will include this highly regarded program as part of your 2019 professional development plan. See you in San Diego!

SECRET OF MEDIA RELATIONS MASTERS
Discover How to Craft the Perfect Pitch and Get Placements With Pitching

DAY 1: PLACEMENTS WITHOUT PITCHING: BUILDING MEDIA RELATIONSHIPS

This portion will focus on laying the foundation required for superior pitching success. You’ll discover Michael Smart’s unique approach to building a strong network of journalists and other influencers who know, like and TRUST you.

He will give you a step-by-step process for connecting with contacts who might trust a specific source one day only to doubt that source the next. And he’ll expand your thinking to build your network of contacts well beyond the world of journalists — to focus on creative and innovative opportunities for reaching your audience that most PR pros miss.

DAY 2: CRAFTING THE PERFECT PITCH: BOOST YOUR PLACEMENTS WITH PROVEN FORMULAS FOR SUCCESS

PR pros who get more and better placements tend to have very different careers compared to those who never “crack the code” for successful pitching. These PR pros earn industrywide respect for their work and enjoy more opportunities for career advancement.

The strategies you learn in this day of the workshop have been used by previous attendees to get coverage in top-tier national media such as the front page of The New York Times, in The Wall Street Journal and USA Today, and on CNN and NBC’s “Today.”

You’ll hone your skills by learning from DOZENS of successful pitches that have landed major placements. And you’ll begin applying what you’re learning immediately during the training.

While average PR pros are finding it more difficult to get emails opened and to earn attention from journalists and influencers, this two-day event will put you on a path toward creating superior results in PR with far less work.

If you aren’t experiencing the success you want with your pitching and network of contacts, enroll today!

For best results, most attendees register for both days. But each day does stand on its own, so you do have the option to register for only one if that’s all your schedule will allow.

Take a deep dive into the key aspects of the public relations profession. Whether you are a journalist, new graduate, transitioning from another field, new in your position or wanting to learn more about public relations, this overview with Robin Schell, APR, Fellow PRSA, will provide you with the knowledge you need.

Gain a clear understanding of public relations and communications concepts and techniques through lectures, case study presentations, discussions and group exercises. Examine the theory and practice of major issues presently facing the public relations profession and participate in hands-on teamwork as you create your own public relations plan based on a case study.

BY THE END OF THIS WORKSHOP, PARTICIPANTS WILL BE ABLE TO:

• Understand how to transition into the public relations profession.
• Define the challenges and opportunities of the public relations profession.
• Design a 10-step public relations program including setting goals and tactical execution.
• Explain how to measure public relations effectiveness.
• Describe how to create effective external/internal communications.
• Demonstrate understanding how to handle crisis communications.
• Understand ethics guidelines.
• Define research methodologies.
• Understand how to create and present a public relations plan.

All participants will receive a workbook for this event.
Emotional Intelligence: The Next Professional Frontier for Communication Pros

Emotional Intelligence (EQ) is at the top of conversations in every level of business today. Research indicates that EQ mastery is crucial for organizations to succeed and cultures to thrive in the future; and all five aspects of EQ fall under the domain of communications. As communicators, it is imperative that we take a leadership role bringing emotional intelligence into our organizations.

This full-day workshop is designed to enhance participants’ EQ, expand leadership capabilities and teach the skills we need to counsel and serve within our organizations at the highest level. Through hands-on tools, techniques, instruction, handouts and exercises, participants will learn the brain science of success and pivotal skills in communications and EQ to shift into an active, empowered leadership position in any situation. These are the skills the organizations and stakeholders we serve will need to operate more effectively and thrive as the best versions of themselves. That process begins with us.

YOU WILL LEARN:
• How to use brain-body science to master the inner and outer conversation.
• Core skills in emotional intelligence.
• How to help organizations be more integrity-based and values-driven.
• Master-level communication that builds connection, harmony and trust.
• How to shift from the weakest to the strongest part of yourself as a leader.
• Tools for using challenge as opportunity — and helping organizations do so.

Maximize Owned and Earned Media to Garner (Real) Results

Have you ever had a client or executive tell you they wanted their communications program to make the cash register sing? Or get on the first page of Google results? Or outperform their competition? We all know communications can do those things, but it’s a long game and it’s not always directly correlated — UNLESS you strategically integrate earned and owned media, use some SEO strategies and some elbow grease, and understand how today’s journalists work for views and shares. In this workshop, founder of the podcast Spin Sucks and author of the book by the same name Gini Dietrich will teach you exactly how to do that — with precision and guaranteed results every time. She’ll help you benchmark your own program, set metrics and build a plan to garner real results.

YOU WILL LEARN:

• How to use data to build content around what your audience(s) wants.
• How to build an editorial calendar that’s focused on your audience.
• How to pitch media and influencers with your own content.
• How to earn a link back to your site — from major news, business and trade publications.
• How to measure results, build awareness, increase search rankings and achieve global domination.

We live in a visual world. People remember 30 percent of what they read, but 80 percent of what they see. That’s why today’s PR professional needs to understand how to tell stories visually.

Whether you have access to a whole video team or your own smartphone, this workshop will teach attendees how to evolve their storytelling skills, incorporating a content-marketing approach that includes strategic visuals.

Understand what makes a good story and how to structure it. Attendees will see examples and learn how and when to use different types of multimedia content including video, graphics, 360 and virtual reality.

Learn tangible visual storytelling tips and real-life case studies including an example that helped one brand increase website traffic by 249 percent through visual storytelling.

YOU WILL LEARN:

• How to apply your and your team’s current skills to the new role of visual storytellers in PR. Learn proven steps on how to transition your role and your team’s role to seamlessly adopt visual content marketing. See examples of how other organizations are structured for storytelling using visual content. Learn how to find stories and set up an editorial calendar that’s easy to execute.

• Lights ... camera ... editing. What equipment do you need? From the best cameras and edit gear at different budget levels to the top-rated software and tools, learn what brands at all budget levels use for visual storytelling success.

• Multimedia production tips from an Emmy Award-winner. Once you have the right equipment, how do you use it to start getting results for your brand? Learn easy-to-incorporate tips from how to set up a great interview background to how to use simple editing techniques to make a bad interview look great.

• How to amplify your content. When it comes to visual storytelling, one size does not fit all channels. Learn how to strategically incorporate various tactics for different channels. Understand the digital strategies and skills needed to integrate storytelling into Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and other social platforms to amplify your visual content.

• How to track and measure your storytelling success. If you can’t prove ROI, it didn’t happen, right? Understand the best practices for measuring visual storytelling including the best tools and templates.

We are entering a new era in PR and marketing with the integration of behavioral science, psychology and neuroscience into professional communication. Data-driven decisions can now be made to guide messaging, content marketing, media messages and crisis communication. In an always-on and hyperconnected world, the nuances of our communication are the difference between being heard and being ignored; and behavior-based communicators have tools to be heard that give them a competitive edge.

Join the first PRSA Workshop on Behavioral Communication from Elizabeth Edwards, founder of Volume PR and the 11th Octave, and one of PRSA’s highest-rated speakers, to learn how to ensure your communication is heard and that your audiences take action.

Forbes listed Behavior-Based Communication as No. 1 on their list of “Marketing Tools and Tactics That Will Shake Up 2019” because of its ability to make communication, PR and marketing measurably more successful.

IN THIS DYNAMIC AND INTERACTIVE ONE-DAY WORKSHOP, YOU WILL LEARN:

• How to make your communication have a competitive advantage over other voices.
• How to base communication decisions on hard data to increase outcomes.
• To describe “Replication Crisis” is and why we can’t rely on all past psychological research.
• What “Non-Conscious Research” is and how Pledge used it to revamp their messages to compete against one-step dusting products.
• What the “11th Octave” is and why we need to engage it to be heard in a noisy world.
• How to apply behavioral economics and Nobel Prize-winning “Nudge Theory” to increase positive responses to communication campaigns.
• What the “Backfire Effect” is and how to make sure your communication does not create greater distance between you and your audience.
• How one of the nation’s largest retirement brands was telling audiences NOT to buy their services (and how to not make the same mistake).

BY THE END OF THIS WORKSHOP, YOU WILL BE ABLE TO:

• Understand how the mind is reacting to modern-day communication and what we must now do to gain attention.
• Understand how to manage crisis communication and gain the highest degree of message acceptance.
• Pitch media differently to increase the number of contributed articles placed.
• Enhance your persuasion skills in your communication, marketing and public relations.
• Strengthen loyalty among internal and external audiences.
• Define how to release information so that it has the highest likelihood of being remembered.
• Create a list of free tools to run your content through to guarantee it is at the right level for your audiences.
• Master key skills needed to start speaking to your audience’s “11th Octave.”
• Audit your existing communication new behavioral laws to increase positive responses from what you already have in place.

This two-day workshop will combine both learning about the intricacies of building a measurable, behavioral, strategic plan and time to create a working plan for your department that supports your organization’s goals and objectives.

You will finish the two days with a strategic plan close to completion. Finish up any areas needing rounding out, add a timeline, budget, staffing requirements and execute!

You will learn communication and behavioral public relations theories along with data-driven decision making that will help you focus your efforts and prepare a plan that:

- Sets measurable, behavioral objectives tied to organizational objectives.
- Prioritizes key audiences and identifies the behaviors you need from them in order to achieve those objectives.
- Includes a list of key opinion leaders and influencers who will be instrumental in educating and persuading stakeholders.
- Outlines key stakeholder’s latent readiness to behave and allows you to plan strategies and activities that capitalize on that readiness.
- Evaluates the environment in which the plan will be executed in order to identify opportunities and barriers to success.
- Identifies research needs.
- Builds in mechanisms to monitor the desired behavior(s) to measure progress and allow for midcourse corrections.
- Includes effective core messaging.
- Identifies tactics for achieving short- and long-term behaviors.
- Identifies evaluation criteria for measuring success.

The workshop is designed for you to either 1) work alone, 2) work cooperatively with others in similar industry areas (health care, financial, education, not-for-profit, etc., if in attendance) for input and insights or 3) bring your own team to form a work group.

- Bring your organization’s vision and mission statements, current organization goals and objectives, past research on stakeholder perceptions and readiness to act.
- Learn as a group and bring any members of your team critical to planning and interested in becoming more strategic in their approach to public relations practice.

In two days, participants will hear from the instructor and each other about best practices for planning measurably successful communication campaigns, and apply what they learn to a project or campaign they will soon need to address at work. They will learn about many different ways to measure messages, channels and outcomes of communication. They also will get feedback from the instructor and other participants on the plans and measurement tools they draft themselves based on what they learn.

BY THE END OF THE CLASS, THEY WILL WALK OUT WITH DELIVERABLES THEY HAVE CREATED THEMSELVES. SOME OF THE KEY CONCEPTS COVERED IN THE CLASS INCLUDE HOW TO:

- Create a communication plan for a campaign or project focused on changing stakeholder behaviors. This project should be based on a real situation each participant is addressing in his or her own organization.
- Develop a measurement plan for conducting research before the planned campaign is implemented as well as measuring during and after the campaign to track its success.
- Write measurable SMART objectives based on the communication plan for messages, channels and outcomes.
- Analyze the pros and cons of different types of communication research methodologies to apply in different situations.
- Draft a focus group guide and a survey to use as part of an overall communication audit — or to apply only to the campaign planned during the class.
- Interpret raw data from surveys and present results in an accurate and meaningful way. (This part of the class will use existing results from other surveys.)

The future is about doing meaningful and purposeful work. The pace of change is so fast that people tend to be overwhelmed. Giving communication professionals an anchor for finding a sense of purpose in their role is invaluable. Increasing Personal Effectiveness (IPE) is the anchor that will help master class participants in discovering this purpose.

The PRSA Increasing Personal Effectiveness Master Class is a professional development offering that is designed as an in-depth, in-person, 1 1/2-day immersion in advanced best practices in personal effectiveness. The in-class instruction, role-play and exercises are structured to provide measured behavioral changes in employee performance, communication and ownership for results that help you perfect your personal brand. The master class dives into advanced tactics and strategies by having participants apply the principles learned through in-class activities within the related subjects of New Choices for Growth and Change, Understanding Behavioral Styles, Powerful Communication Skills, Effective Listening Practices, and Managing Success for Results.

The PRSA Increasing Personal Effectiveness Master Class is a proven, practical, skills-based course that will help you acquire new performance strategies and develop advanced skills for becoming more effective. Being personally effective and accountable has never been more important. The competitive landscape requires a fast-paced level of growth and interaction in order to influence, persuade and collaborate with diverse thinking. Whether developing your career as an emerging leader or refining best practices as an individual contributor, IPE provides immensely valuable tools for aligning skills with current cultural expectations.

Participants will be given digital and written tools to help extract personal insights, uncover oversights and identify opportunities to strengthen performance. Through the central focus of personal ownership for refining behaviors that need attention to communicating in the most polished way, participants immediately look within instead of blaming others for choices.

Bring your personal communication challenges to this unique, collaborative course designed to empower participants with skills that cultivate stronger communication, develop personal accountability and appreciate diverse thinking.

INCREASING PERSONAL EFFECTIVENESS MASTER CLASS MODULES:

• New Choices for Growth and Change
• Understanding Behavioral Styles
• Powerful Communication Skills
• Effective Listening Practices
• Managing Success for Results

BY THE END OF THIS MASTER CLASS, PARTICIPANTS WILL BE ABLE TO:

• Become accountable for their behavior, communication, thinking and professionalism through their personal choices.
• Build self-awareness about their strengths, skill sets and areas that need developing.
• Learn about individual behavior styles to maximize their communication with peers, direct reports, clients and senior management.
• Develop assertive language patterns to provide feedback and resolve conflicts in a professional manner.
• Achieve goals with business impact that will result in professional growth.

This workshop will teach you how to shoot and edit videos that can be used in media pitches and on social media.

This hands-on workshop will teach attendees how to actually create and edit their own video content. In this hands-on seminar, you will use your phone to shoot video and record interviews, then edit the footage into a 30-second segment. You’ll learn how to correctly frame shots and interviews. You’ll also learn how to properly light your subject and get clean, usable audio. The workshop also will teach you how to host Facebook Live videos. Attendees will need to download free editing software on their laptop or phone before the session. The presenters will teach you how to use the program during the workshop. This workshop is designed for communicators who are responsible for creating news and social media content for their department or client.

BY THE END OF THIS WORKSHOP, PARTICIPANTS WILL BE ABLE TO:

- Edit video in an easy-to-use program.
- Create video content for media outreach and social media success.
- Recognize when they should — and shouldn’t — make a video.
- Walk away thinking, “I know video is becoming more important — now I know how to make my own.”

Maintaining relevant communication skills is one of the most critical needs for successful communication professionals today. PRSA’s new Executive Communication Online Series is designed to teach and empower you with strategic knowledge, skills and abilities to develop quantifiable business outcomes.

The Executive Communication Online Series, consisting of six sessions, will enable you to transition from a traditional communication pro to an expert strategic communicator aligning with specific business goals. Throughout the program, you’ll be learning skills you can start applying to your work immediately, resulting in a digital badge for each session completed during the series. The course involves a combination of presenters providing the structure of the core curriculum and teaching from both theory and practice.

This brand-new professional development offering is designed as a live, online series of six sessions and will launch on April 4, airing each consecutive Thursday from Noon–1:15 p.m. EDT (April 4, 11, 18, 25, May 2 and 9). All sessions will be recorded so that participants can review them after the live airing. Participants will be required to participate within the Online Series’ Private Community and asked to read “light” materials for each session prior to the live broadcast.

THIS PROGRAM IS DESIGNED FOR:
- Professionals seeking to elevate relevant communication skills.
- Strategic communication executives with P&L responsibility.
- Leaders responsible for managing teams with specific business goals.
- Practitioners leading or bridging culture on the cutting edge of dynamic change.
- Communication executives with eight or more years of experience.

In the wake of unprecedented, high-profile and devastating corporate crises, Reputation Risk has emerged as the No. 1 most important strategic risk for every organization. CEOs and boards need someone to tackle these risks for them — with more than just a crisis management plan. Communicators have an opportunity to meet this need for leadership by implementing a low-tech, high-touch, cross-functional process that gives senior management confidence that Reputation Risk is well managed.

Designed as an on-demand certificate of completion program, the Reputation Risk Management (RRM) Certificate Program is designed to equip management-level communicators with advanced perspective, best practices and a practical, implementation-ready approach to managing Reputation Risk.

REPUTATION RISK MANAGEMENT MODULES:

- Differentiating and Marketing in a Volatile Reputation Risk Environment
- CSR and Sustainability as a Path to Reputation Risk Mitigation
- Integrating Reputation Risk and Crisis Management Planning/Preparation/Execution
- Enhancing Enterprisewide Communication and Reputation Risk Coordination Capabilities
- Shaping Internal Culture as Highest-Level Reputation Risk Mitigation

OBJECTIVES OF THE REPUTATION RISK MANAGEMENT CERTIFICATE PROGRAM:

- Understand the intersection of Enterprise Risk Management and Reputation Risk: Why Is It Such a Big Problem and Why Is the Current Approach Incomplete?
- Learn how to leverage the communicator’s skill set to build on existing infrastructure, engage other functions and deliver real value that addresses the biggest risk faced by your organization.
- Apply a new approach that builds on your organization’s unique strengths to deepen understanding of existing Reputation Risks, identify and monitor emerging risks, enhance existing mitigation efforts, and develop new Reputation Risk Management strategies.
The Measurement and Analytics Certificate Program goes well beyond simply measuring the effectiveness of communication. You also will learn how to build research into the beginning of your communications planning process in ways that are fast, easy and inexpensive. Also, at the end of resource-intensive communication campaigns that involve audience behavior changes, you’ll be able to calculate the marginal ROI on your organization’s communication investment.

Designed as an on-demand program, participants will learn skills they can start applying to their work immediately, resulting in a skills-based certificate of completion when they’re finished.

MEASUREMENT AND ANALYTICS CERTIFICATE PROGRAM MODULES:
• Using Research Before Developing Communication Plans
• Evaluating the Success of Messaging/Campaigns
• Evaluating the Success of Channels
• Connecting Communication Measures to Business Results
• In-Depth Measures for Specific Channels
• Best Practices for Research Methodology

Corporate Reputation Management (RM) is a concept at the core of the communication profession — one that has matured into a management discipline over the past 20 years that extends beyond the traditional domain of the function. As it has matured and expanded into the realm of business strategy and corporate governance, communicators are seen as the go-to experts inside their organizations. This on-demand professional development offering is designed as a certificate of completion program to equip management-level communicators with solid perspective, best practices and resources to meet the changing expectations of senior management for reputation leadership.

THIS CERTIFICATE PROGRAM IS DESIGNED FOR:
• Manager and senior-level PR and communication professionals.
• Professionals who council their leadership.
• Strategic thinkers in communication roles.
• Professionals who are responsible for corporate culture.
• Any professional responsible for managing a corporate brand.
• Industry leaders responsible for implementing initiatives across an enterprise.
• Professionals responsible for digital communications.

BY THE END OF THIS CERTIFICATE PROGRAM, PARTICIPANTS WILL HAVE LEARNED HOW TO:
• Master key skills, tools and proven processes necessary to become an internal “champion” for corporate reputation.
• Highlight/share case studies from organizations that have succeeded along their reputation journeys.
• Quantify, benchmark and ultimately connect the dots from reputation to business results.
• Grasp new digital and social tools that present the greatest threat (and opportunity) for their organization’s reputation.
• Draw on the insights of experts who have witnessed the evolution of disconnected.
• Incorporate CSR and what it takes to demonstrate a clear path in setting the vision for an organization.
• Win support for their programs and initiatives from outside the function and across the organization.
• Understand what key traits CEOs are looking for in their communication leaders, and receive advice for their personal professional development and career advancement in the Reputation Economy.

REPUTATION MANAGEMENT MODULES:
• Reputation Champion’s Path Forward
• Reputation and the CEO
• KPIs and Collaboration: The Reputation Journey
• Digital Reputation
• Measurement Discipline – Solve the Reputation Value Equation
• CSR and Reputation: Establishing a Vision
• Reputation and the Communicator’s Career
• Corporate Diplomacy and Executive Leadership

The Digital Communication Certificate Program concentrates on an advanced technical landscape for digital communicators working within branding, social media and content strategy to leverage a variety of digital tools through evolving channels and platforms geared to appeal to different audiences. The Digital Communication Certificate Program will equip management-level communicators with best practices within digital content strategy, personas, digital storytelling, writing for SEO and the web, digital innovation and the measurement of digital communication.

This brand-new professional development offering is designed as a live, online series of six modules and will launch on May 22, 2019, and run through June 26, 2019, airing each consecutive Wednesday from 3–4:30 p.m. EDT. All modules will be recorded so that participants can listen or review them after the live date or to re-listen in preparation for the final exam. Additionally, member participants will be given access to PRSA’s Online Integrated Communication Community, an exclusive online forum offering private access and interactive dialogue with other members taking the course.

The course involves a combination of presenters, with Justin Seibert providing the structure of the core curriculum. Each week he will be joined by one or more experts in various aspects of the week’s topic who will present case studies of how they applied the concepts. After successfully completing and passing the 18-question, multiple-choice test at the end of the series, registrants will be awarded a certificate of completion.

THIS CERTIFICATE PROGRAM IS DESIGNED FOR:
- Manager and senior-level PR and communication professionals.
- Any professional responsible for managing a corporate communications team.
- Leaders charged with advising other executives.
- Professionals responsible for managing digital communications.
- Marketing professionals.
- Communicators with five or more years of experience.

BY THE END OF THIS CERTIFICATE PROGRAM, PARTICIPANTS WILL BE ABLE TO:
- Apply digital strategy across multiple channels to drive stronger results in a faster, more efficient manner.
- Analyze the characteristics of the primary personas and discover more ways to use behavior to boost communication results.
- Understand how to create digital marketing content that gets picked up in search engine results.
- Enhance social media and content skills to build stronger synergy between channels.
- Innovate creative strategies for building and maintaining a digital competitive advantage.
- Create goals and measurements that determine digital success metrics to achieve business results.

CERTIFICATE PROGRAM MODULES:
- Develop a Winning Digital Content Strategy

Why I got my APR?
To conquer my biggest fear and realize my untapped potential.

I’ll admit it. I was afraid of the APR Examination. But I didn’t let fear stop me from taking the leap and preparing for it. The result? I got my APR and built the confidence to help me realize my untapped potential!

~ Mary Beth Haban, APR
Lead Creative Strategist, Communications | Public Relations

Why I got my APR?
To expand my value both to my employer and to the team I’d lead.

I learned most of my PR skills on the job and have a wide range of experience, including internal, corporate and digital communications. Getting my APR helped to validate my on-the-job education and position me for greater success.
